- Header: A black bar with white text that reads 'Pick a card... any card...'.
- Grid: A 2x3 grid of playing card backs. The top row contains three cards: a red ornate design, a blue ornate design, and a red ornate design. The bottom row contains two blue ornate designs and one red ornate design. Each card is surrounded by a pink border.
- Annotations: Numbered circles (1 through 5) point to specific parts of the page:
  - (1) Points to the left margin of the main content area.
  - (2) Points to the right edge of the top row of cards.
  - (3) Points to the right edge of the bottom row of cards.
  - (4) Points to the bottom right corner of the page.
  - (5) Points to the left edge of the bottom-left card in the grid.
- Text: A red box at the bottom center contains the text 'let the magic begin!' and '(horizontally centered in browser window)'.

1 `#wrapper` | 1000px width

Notes |

All images are supplied.

2 `header` | 1000px width, 100px height
`h1` | Google Font 'Chango', 3.5em

Each image is a rollover. I'd like you to match the placement of the card backs as shown above, but you can put the 'over' images wherever you like.

3 `#cards` | 900px width, 800px height

I'm sure you're a little rusty with this stuff.
Just do the best that you can.

4 `footer` | 1000px width
`p` | Gill Sans, 1.3em

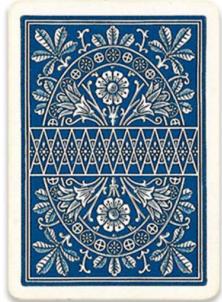

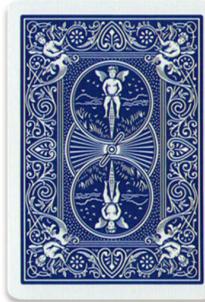

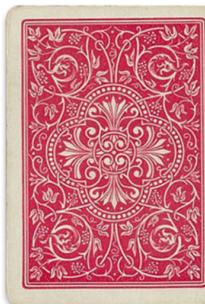

The link (let the magic begin!) at the bottom should open up the class website in a new _blank tab.

5 `.pick-one` | 250px width, 350px height
